$10 MILLION FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

F INANCING THEIR FUTURE

Century II

$10 MILLION FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

The most far-reaching event of Homecoming Weekend may well be the launching of the Century II Endowment Fund campaign on Saturday night, November 3. Here's the story . . .

Once upon a time, long, long ago, a school was born. The 19th century was about to close when Graysville Academy came into being. Back in those early days an hour and a half of work per day and $100 cash could see a student through a year of school.

Now the second century for that school, which has matured as Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists, lies just over the horizon. Times have changed and so has the price tag for education. The two-semester bill for the average dormitory student at Southern comes to $7,430.

"We're making every effort to hold down tuition and other costs," says Richard Reiner, senior vice president for finance. "In fact, college cost increases here over the past 10 years have been held below Consumer Price Index rises." Yet $30,000 for a college degree is a frightening thought to many families wanting the best in Christian education for their children.

Student scholarships offer the answer to tuition shock, the affliction affecting so many American homes these days. But those scholarships have to come from somewhere. There we are . . . back to the Century II Endowment Fund.

The Endowment Fund Committee, composed of 25 individuals, many of them astute and successful businessmen, met in September to plan campaign strategy. These plans will be unveiled in an exciting and fast-paced presentation, a segment of the Saturday night Homecoming program, according to William H. Taylor, campaign director.

The multimillion dollar endowment concept is based on gifts that will keep on giving. Ordinary scholarship funds are quickly depleted—the money is awarded, and that's it. Endowments provide support that is more permanent, in that gift funds are carefully invested to furnish income for disbursement as scholarships.

Achievement of the $10 million 10-year goal will provide scholarships for about one thousand students each year.

The concept is not a new one, nor is the goal beyond reach. Yale University has an endowment of $750 million! And Southern has a start already toward the $10 million. Since 1978 when an endowment fund was first set up, the fund has grown to $1.4 million. Right now this is generating scholarships for 269 students who otherwise would not be studying at Southern this semester.

Why Scholarships Rather Than Loans?

Loan funds have their place. In fact last year 1,017 students at Southern assumed loans totaling $1,801,944, according to Laurel Wells, director of student finance. She has 20 years of experience in

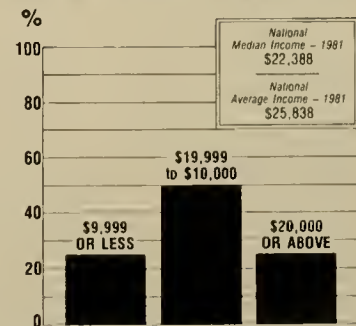

Why Students Need Help

The chart above illustrates the growing gap between the primary financial resources available to students (student wages and student aid such as loans and scholarships) and the costs of education which are inexorably rising at a faster pace.

As shown on the chart at right, most students at Southern College come from families with income below the national median. As many as 75 percent of the families earned a total annual income below $20,000, and a third of those incomes were below $10,000. These charts are based on the latest figures available.

1981-82 STUDENT FAMILY INCOME

This chart indicates the yearly financial income of a student "family" which is identified as married parents or single parents including those children within the household helping young people find ways to come to Southern and stay through to graduation.

"Many of these students have borrowed from two or three loan sources in the same year. It is not uncommon for a student to borrow $4,000 in one school year," she stated. When a student must borrow at that rate for four years, then marries someone with a similar financial load, that couple starts out with a formidable debt which they must begin repaying soon after entering the work force, she points out. These students are among the many who need scholarships to lighten the load.

"Federal allocation of student aid funds has dropped significantly in recent years," Mrs. Wells indicated. "Southern College received 52 percent less funding in the National Direct Student Loan Program for 1984-85 than was received 10 years ago; 37 percent less than in 1983-84."

If cumulative loans are overburdening, if loans are becoming less available, where can a young person turn?

What About Work?

"I believe the Endowment Fund will be the answer for those young people who do not have sufficient financial resources to attend Southern College, but who do have the mind, the determination, and the will to succeed through hard work and dedication," asserts John Wagner, president.

It's not a free-lunch program the Endowment Fund Committee has cooked up. Students who benefit will be doing their part. Awarding of scholarships will continue to be built upon need. Just as important, though, is diligence reflected in acceptable scholastic progress and willingness to work. Scholarship dollars will help those who are willing to help themselves through consistent part-time work.

Even those who faithfully work 20 hours per week and full time during the summer find the gap widening between income and costs. In 1983 this gap was about $4,550, up from $2,200 in 1972. Last year 1,201 students received some type of student assistance. (This was 97 percent of the Full-Time Equivalent enrollment figure.)

Some students, industrious though they are, have special need for scholarship assistance. Many come from one-parent families virtually unable to help out. Some families have two or even three offspring of college age. Education majors are not permitted employment during their student teaching experience due to time commitments in their professional semester. Nursing students seeking the A.S. degree and R.N. status in the two-year program are especially limited in how much they can work.

"We believe it is imperative that Christian education be made available to as many young people as possible," says A. C. McClure, chairman of the Southern College Board of Trustees. "As the Endowment Fund grows, the future of the college will be secure, not only for the church, which involves the constituents of the Southern Union, but for thousands of students who will come to the college in future years."

Groundwork has been laid in recent weeks for a cooperative effort throughout the conferences of the Southern Union.

Dr. Cecil Rolfe, professor of business administration, chairs the Endowment Fund Investment Committee. Policies are already activated to safeguard investments to the utmost degree possible, according to Dr. Rolfe.

"Alumni everywhere will be kept informed of their opportunities to participate in the Century II program," says Mr. Taylor. "Those employed by companies with matching gift programs will certainly want to consider that benefit. Some alumni will be happy to assist with business contacts. There will be many ways to share in this campaign. Volunteers can know that they are actually helping thousands of youth get a Christian education and are possibly participating in a survival program for Southern College itself." ■

ALUMNI COME HOME

As many as a thousand alumni and family members will be "coming home" the weekend of November 3 to renew fond memories and friendships.

Classes to be honored at the 1984 Alumni Homecoming are the decade classes of 1924, 1934, 1944, and 1974, and the 25-year class (1959) and 5-year class (1979). A Sunday-morning brunch at 8:30 a.m. is planned especially for members of these classes.

General registration on Friday afternoon will be at the historic little Doll House on Campus Drive. It will continue at that location until sundown, then move to the Physical Education Center.

Sabbath morning speaker will be Elder Joe Crews, '44, director of Amazing Facts, a radio-TV and Bible lesson ministry. The 8:15 a.m. early church service will be followed by Sabbath School at 9:30 a.m., then a later church service at 11:30 a.m. These will be in the Physical Education Center. The day will be enriched with music by the Symphonic Choir and the SC Symphony under the direction of Orlo Gilbert, plus a concert Sabbath afternoon planned by Dr. Marvin Robertson.

Friday will be Founders Day, with special events centered around So-Ju-Conians, the graduates of Southern Junior College, 1916-1944. Registration especially for So-Ju-Conians will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Friday at Miller Hall, the former music building.

A significant campus transition will be marked by appropriate afternoon ceremonies beginning Friday at 2:30 p.m. at Miller Hall. These will include the planting of a tree brought from the old Graysville campus and the setting of stones from that site to form a new fountain. Miller Hall is about to be transformed into the Religion Center, So-Ju-Conian Hall. This project is testimony to the lives and loving service of the 380 alumni of that era who are still living, as well as to students and staff in whose memory donations have been given.

So-Ju-Conian Hall will provide office and classroom space for the Division of Religion, as well as chapel and library areas. The solidity of the brick building will be complemented by new landscaping when renovation is complete. The name of Harold A. Miller, music teacher in the 1930's to the 1950's, will not be lost. Appropriately, it is to be transferred to the choral section of J. Mabel Wood Hall, the new music building.

Friday evening vesper speaker will be Mark Dalton, '74, associate pastor of the Madison Campus Church. Vespers will begin at 7:45 p.m. in the Physical Education Center.

As Sabbath ends, Karen Oswald Nelson, '74, will lead in meditation. That program, along with the business meeting to follow, will be in the Collegedale Academy gymnasium.

Jerry Clower, known for his humorous presentations about the South, will be filling the Physical Education Center with laughter Saturday evening. A Christian gentleman, Clower's folk comedy includes stories about his relatives, particularly his cousin Marcel. Alumni will be guests for this program; those wishing to reserve seats will have opportunity to do so.

Sabbath meal arrangements include the hosting of lunch for the alumni by the Collegedale Church. Alumni will be guests of the Collegedale Chapter of the Alumni Association and the SC faculty and staff for the Sabbath evening meal. Both meals will be at the academy gymnasium. A box lunch supper Friday evening is planned for the So-Ju-Conian group at the conclusion of the afternoon activities.

Coordinating the Homecoming events this year is Elder K. R. Davis, associate director of the Alumni Association. He is assisted by the Alumni Executive Committee: John Wm. Henson, president; Robert Loren, D.D.S., president-elect; Susan Boyd Miller, past president; Ed Neal, president of Collegedale Alumni Chapter; Lois Hilderbrandt Moore; Nelson Thoresen; Evonne Kutzner Crook. Others working with them are Jack McClarty, Vinita Sauder, and William H. Taylor. ■

Alumni Top BECA Goals

Alumni of Southern College are increasingly supporting their alma mater in a measurable way, with cash gifts more than four times the amount given in 1979-80.

Challenge grants totaling $45,500 from BECA (Business Executives Challenge Alumni) are being awarded to Southern College during the Annual Council in Washington, D.C.

The terms of the challenge grants were alumni contributions of $120,000 in the annual alumni drive and a total of 1,575 donors. Both goals were exceeded.

"The growing generosity of our alumni means a lot to me personally," says Dr. John Wagner, president, who is attending the Annual Council meetings October 9 to 16 and representing the college at the BECA award presentation.

"The BECA challenge grants are much appreciated, too. Not only do they supply an extra motivational edge, but also the cash bonuses help meet special campus needs that otherwise could not be funded."

In the year ending June 30, $120,038 was given to the annual alumni fund for unrestricted use. This is an 18 percent increase over the previous year. These gifts are spread among a number of needs, student aid among them. In addition, alumni contributed $123,630 in restricted gifts for specific projects.

Placing priority on student needs, the college's Administrative Council decided to put the major portion of the unrestricted alumni gifts, $102,000, into scholarship endowment this year. A research grant of $5,000 for Dr. Ray Hefferlin, $5,000 for services to alumni, $25,000 toward production of the SOUTHERN COLUMNS, and $3,000 for the Heritage Room were other allotments. From the BECA challenge grants, coming as a reward for outstanding alumni support, banquet room carpeting and chairs, $8,000; cafeteria drapes, $7,000; and band uniforms, $5,000, were funded.

The incentives of the BECA program spurred this year's increases. The five-year, $2 million BECA effort was started in 1979 by a group of Adventist business people who wanted to see alumni support increase from its then 6.5 percent.

After four years of BECA challenges, 31.3 percent of the alumni from Southern College supported their alma mater through the annual fund. This was well above the 25.4 percent achievement of the 11 Adventist colleges and universities as a whole. (National average for private colleges is 24 percent.) A level of 33 percent participation is a goal for the future.

BECA challenges to the 11 SDA colleges and universities in North America totaled $312,000 this past year, 15 percent of which is being awarded to Southern College. ■

BECA CHALLENGE GRANT PROGRAM Five-Year Program, 1980-1985

The BECA (Business Executives Challenge Alumni) goals have been reached in the four years of the program. The following chart shows the record of achievement and the challenge for 1984-85.

AT WORK

Ray Hefferlin has taught at Southern longer than anyone else—nearly 30 years. This year, however, he is taking a sabbatical leave at the University of Denver. Shortly before he left Collegedale for Colorado, he was awarded a $5,000 research grant. The grant was made possible by recent unrestricted BECA contributions from alumni, many of them his former students. See article on facing page for other BECA awards.

Dear Colleagues:

Now that the stress of moving to Denver has been reduced to only two crises (no office space yet and a ruined car engine), I have had time to reflect on the announcement made to me just as I was leaving.

It is an honor, and a responsibility, to be entrusted with the $5000 portion of the BECA funds. The money will be used, as specified, to establish contact with Dr. Fanao Kong (People's Republic of China), with someone knowledgeable about a molecular property under study (e.g., one of the Thermodynamics Group at Dow Chemical Corp. in Michigan), with someone skilled in group theory, and possibly with one or more other specialists as the need arises. Accounting of the funds will be submitted.

I look forward to a challenging academic year here at the University of Denver, thanks to the support from Southern College. I pray that Southern College will experience a very good year and experience the support from all around the world which its excellent faculty and staff deserve.

Respectfully
— Ray Hefferlin

Those Who Walked These Halls

1920's

Eva (Teed) Beugnot, '29, is retired in Fellsmere, Florida. The Beugnots attend the Vero Beach Church.

Maurine (Shaw) Boyd, '27, is retired from teaching and lives in Angwin, California.

L. Allee Flanagan, '29, lives in St. Helena, California, and takes care of a lady there with eyesight problems. After teaching for several years, she took up nursing and graduated with a B.S.N.E. degree from Pacific Union College in 1949.

Walter C. Martin, '26, and his wife, Eva Maude (Wilson), '30, live in Hendersonville, North Carolina. Maude is a retired registered nurse, and previously lived in Melrose, Massachusetts.

1930's

Mary (Philmont) Byers, '34, retired in 1980 from 26 years as chairman of the department of consumer related sciences on the La Sierra Campus of Loma Linda University. She and her husband, Douglas, live in Riverside, California, and do Community Service work for the church. They have a married son and daughter and a 5-year-old grandchild. "I have many happy memories of school days at SJC," she writes.

Joe S. Cruise, M.D., '36, is a physician in private practice in Atlanta. He also serves the Southern Union Conference as associate medical secretary.

Catherine (Scott) Deenham, student '31 to '37, lives in Blairsville, Georgia.

Opal (Freeze) Hewitt, '36, is no longer living.

Eva Maude (Wilson) Martin, '30, is living in Hendersonville, North Carolina. She worked as a nurse at Hinsdale, Illinois, and Glendale, California, before retirement.

Margarete (Seilaz) Petersen, '39, and her husband, Lewis, sold their Corvallis, Oregon, printing business in 1981 (after 36 years of ownership). This freed them to travel farther than their two most frequent destinations—Walla Walla and Spokane—where they visit their daughters, Bev Scott and Glenda Merklin, and families. They look forward to a trip to Florida this fall, with Collegedale on the itinerary.

Charles L. Reeve, M.D., Madison '39, lives in Deer Park, California. His wife, Helen (Lamberton), graduated from nursing at Madison. Their son, Charles Henry, '80, now lives in Memphis, Tennessee.

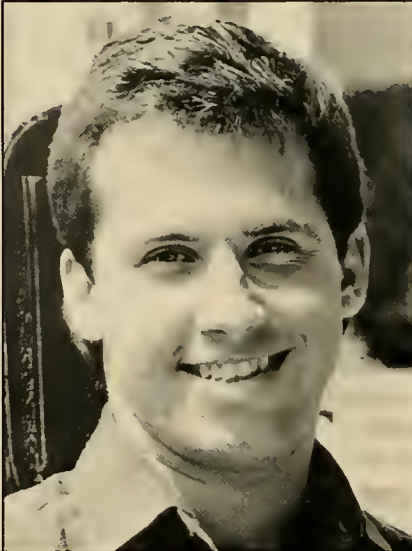

Flora Savelle, '35, passed away May 7, 1983. She taught church school for 37 years, was very active in helping others, and raised thousands of dollars yearly for Ingathering. Her sister still lives in Orlando, Florida.

Ward B. Shaw, Sr., '32, died April 21 in Clermont, Florida. At the time of his death he was on the staff of Lake Highland Retirement and Nursing Facility. His three daughters live in Tennessee, and a son in Alabama.

Ruth Elizabeth (Anderson) Stagg, student '38 to '39, lives in Keene, Texas. Bette is a retired physician.

Elaine (Foley) Turner, student '33 to '36, is a retired nurse in Orlando, Florida. She worked at Florida Hospital.

Morris Clark Barringer, student '48 to '49, works in environmental services at Boulder Memorial Hospital in Colorado. He married Ethel (Horton) in April, 1950. Their son, Montie, is an attorney and judge in Pueblo, also active in the church.

Minnie (Brown) Gleason Berean, former student, lives with her husband at the Florida Living Center in Forest City. Selling literature one summer in her youth, a "temporary" teaching job interrupted her plans and began her long teaching career. She taught in Memphis, Nashville, and Wayne County, Michigan. Summer after summer she returned to Collegedale to continue her own education. She married Harry Gleason in 1946, gaining a ready-made family of four daughters. After 10 years of widowhood, she married Dewey Berean in 1968. They both have been active in giving Bible studies and placing Christian literature in motels and libraries.

Robert K. Boyd, Ph.D., business administration teacher '38 to '42, has retired from teaching business and lives in Angwin, California.

Mildred (Moore) Clark, student '43 to '44, is the wife of a physician. They live in Angwin, California, and have two sons, a minister and a physician. They also have four grandsons.

Lorabel (Peavey) Midkiff, '41 and '81, is librarian at Collegedale Academy. Her husband, Marvin, is in health care administration. They say it's "good to be back in Collegedale, which gets more beautiful all the time." They still find time for travel, church work, and community involvement. "God has blessed us with good health and loving kids living nearby."

Ruby (Aikman) Shields, '46, is a research assistant for the Minnesota Historical Society in the department of archives and manuscripts. She and her husband, Aubrey, teach Sabbath School classes at the First SDA Church in Minneapolis. Their sons, Charles, Jonathan, and David are all graduates of SMC or SC. Daughter Sarita also attended. David has been accepted into medical school at Loma Linda University.

1950's

Reni R. and Waldina Alonso, '52, live in Keene, Texas.

Richard Arthur, '58, has been working as an EEG technologist for St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Worth, Texas, for over two years. He began working in the electroencephalography field in 1965 at Hinsdale Hospital in Illinois.

Katie (Phillips) Baker, '59, is a representative for Christian Record Braille Foundation in western Kentucky and northwest Tennessee. She and her husband, Elmer, travel together. Their four children are ages 10 to 22. On weekends they stay at their farm in middle Tennessee near Adamsville.

Dorothy-Mae (McClellan) Benson, student '51 to '53, is a C.R.N.A. living in Fletcher, North Carolina. She is also a housewife and grandmother of four. She and her husband have two sons and two daughters, three of whom are married. Their youngest is 17. "We love our Lord and look for His near return. We rejoice that our children all share this hope."

Joseph J. Boles, student '51, retired from government work in 1974 and now lives near Morganton, North Carolina, on 30 acres of land. He received a diploma from a business college in Hickory in 1955, then worked for the Defense Department as a quality assurance representative in the Defense Supply Agency.

Frances Clark, '53 and '58, is director of education for the Southwestern Union Conference and lives in Keene, Texas.

Ted N. Graves, '54, is principal at Mount Pisgah Academy, and his wife, Mary Jane, is registrar and librarian. Ted Jr. and Tim, '78, are both in Denver, Colorado. Tim is married and expecting soon to pass on the Graves name to a new generation.

Sherman Roy "Jerry" Holdridge, '59, is a paramedic living in Keene, Texas. His daughter, Pam, and her husband, Rod Lewis, live in the Collegedale community. She works at the College Press.

William A. Hust, '53, and his wife, Patricia, live in Angwin, California. He is a general contractor and retired teacher.

Floyd O. Rittenhouse, academic dean from '49 to '52, also on the faculty '38 to '39, is retired at Angwin, but "still loves the Southern people and the Southern College campus." He retired from the presidency of Pacific Union College and was president of Andrews University before that.

Lynn Sauls, '56, and his wife, Helen (Braat), '63, live in Lancaster, Massachusetts. At Atlantic Union College he is academic dean and she is professor of education. Their son, Raymond, and his wife and three young daughters have moved to Guadalajara, Mexico, where he began medical studies in August.

Faye (Mixon) Strickland, student '51 to '54, and her husband, Frank, an anesthesiologist, are retiring to Chesnee, South Carolina, this fall. "We're looking forward to returning to the Southern Union though Frank is a PUC-ite." Their daughter, Peggy Sue, '81, and her husband, James E. Norton, '82, gave them a grandson this year.

Fred Veltman, '51, is a professor of religion at Pacific Union College in California. Besides teaching in the religion department, he is completing a General Conference research project on Ellen White's use of sources in writing The Desire of Ages. His wife, Renie (Pearman), '49, is a receptionist and secretary. They are now grandparents.

Nathaniel Dean Wike, student '53 to '55, is a General Motors consultant. He lives in Germantown, Tennessee. He and his wife, Marilyn, have daughters, Deana, 20, and Janet, 16.

Clara (Nosworthy) Wright writes from Apopka, Florida. Her late husband, Kenneth Wright, was president of the college from 1945 to 1955. One of her greatest joys in recent years was to travel to Malawi with her missionary son Burton, '51, now on furlough in the U.S. Her only daughter, June, graduated in the class of '44. Her son Walter, '54, recently moved to El Cajon, California. Son Kenneth, student '57 to '58, is treasurer at Bass Memorial Academy in Lumberton, Mississippi.

1960's

Johnnie Sue Bartel, '66, lives in Burleson, Texas, and works in a doctor's office.

Freshman Lisa Cowan

Dr. Jerry L. Evans, '65, is an operations research analyst who tests Air Force space systems. He lives in Albuquerque, New Mexico. His wife, Molly Vigil, '65, is an R.N. with an M.S. in health education. She works part time but mostly cares for their four youngsters, ages 3 to 11.

Janet Habenicht, '66, is a secretary for the Texas Conference Association, Cleburne, Texas.

Stephen A. Hall, Sr., '67, is vice president of Florida Financial Concepts. He received his M.S. in business management in 1972 and a second M.S. in criminal justice, in 1979. He is a registered health underwriter. In 1979 he married Mary Urlene (Stevens), Dec. '77. She is an R.N. at Florida Hospital's Family Health Center. They have a son, Stephen Anthony Hall II, and expect a second child in October.

Jean (Lyle) Kumalae, '66, is administrative secretary for Adventist health study in the School of Health, department of biostatistics and epidemiology, at Loma Linda University. Her husband, Jonah, works for Gencon Risk Management Service at the Loma Linda office. They have three girls and a boy: Lei, 14; Lani, 11; Julie, 10; and Jeff, 8.

Luane S. Logan, '65, has been teaching for 19 years: a year at Madison Academy, six years at San Pasqual Academy, six years at Adelpian Academy, and six years at Highland Academy. At Highland in Portland, Tennessee, she teaches keyboard music, typing, and accounting. She is also registrar.

Richard Mitzelfelt, '64, is a district environmental manager for the New Mexico Health and Environment Department. He lives in Placitas, New Mexico.

Bill Mundy, '62, teaches physics at Pacific Union College in Angwin, California. His wife, Susi (Hasel), '66, is a graduation analyst as well as a marriage, family, and child counseling intern.

Paul E. and Mae Quimby, who left Collegedale in 1965, are retired in Angwin, California. Pastor Quimby taught religion and pastored here during two time periods, 1940-43 and 1964-65.

Darleen (Davis) Sanford, '64, and her husband, Bob, have two sons, 13 and 16. Bob is an engineer with NASA at Goddard Space Flight Center. Their address is: 12598 Rt. 108, Clarksville, MD 21029. Darleen directs activities and social services for Sharon Nursing Home, writes a weekly local news column, and books travel arrangements. They are both on the church board at Triadelphia.

Elder Ron Smith, '65, and his wife, Kathleen (Detamore), are living in Boring, Oregon, where he pastors the Hood View Church in Portland, and Kathy is a nurse. They have four children.

Juanita Stinchfield, student '59 to '61, is administrative secretary to the vice president/marketing for the Review & Herald Publishing Association in Hagerstown, Maryland.

Bill and Dixie Strong, both '69, have a new address in Louisville, Kentucky.

Sandra Willsey, '67, is a nurse at Kettering and has one son.

Bob H. Wint, student '68 to '69, is going on his fifth year as principal of Harbert Hills Academy in Savannah, Tennessee. He is married to Debbie (Cooper), who is registrar. Their son, Bobby Jr., is 14.

1970's

Esther (von Pohle) Bailey, student '70 to '73, is married to a veterinarian. They live in Texarkana, Texas, and opened a mixed animal practice in January of 1983. She is a homemaker with three sons to keep her busy: Caleb, 10; Nathan, 4; and Seth, 1.

Debra Angeline Bass, '74, is the 3 to 11 nursing administrative supervisor in a new hospital in Longwood, Florida.

James Jackson Butler, M.D., '77, is an anesthesiologist at the Northeast Alabama Regional Medical Center in Anniston, Alabama.

Shirley Beth Dever, '79, is now Mrs. Clayton Brandt. She is living at Laurelbrook Academy in Tennessee, and is secretary to Bob Zollinger, the president. She has one son.

Rose Edwards, '79, is a registered nurse working as a cardiac specialist with ten doctors in Hemet, California. She does a lot of patient teaching about exercise and diet.

Jack Francisco, '74, is principal of Enterprise Academy in Kansas. He and his wife, Linda (Frick), have three children: Jeremy, 13; Rachel-lee, 10; and Sharla, 8.

Danette Glenn, '77, is working as an R.N. on a medical unit at Porter Memorial Hospital. She lives in Aurora, Colorado, enjoys skiing, is still single, and invites friends to stop by when going to, from, or through Colorado.

James O. Greck, '73, is pastor of the Heights SDA Church in Albuquerque, New Mexico. His wife, Ramona, teaches psychiatric nursing. Previously they were in Mobile, Alabama. Jim is now completing a doctor of ministry degree in church growth.

Linda Sue Henning, '78, is an OB and delivery room nurse in Leesburg, Florida, part time, and mother of a boy, 2, and a baby girl. Her husband, Volker, was recently appointed communication secretary of the Florida Conference.

Those Who Walked These Halls

Wanda Herb, '74, is an inactive R.N. who directs volunteer services (300 volunteers) at Washington Adventist Hospital. She also coordinates Lifeline, a service for the elderly and handicapped. She is still single, owns a townhouse, and enjoys softball, volleyball, and snow skiing.

J. Dwight Herod, '75, has pastored the Hickory-Lenoir district in the Carolina Conference for about three years. His wife, Janita (Robertson), student '74 to '76, is temporarily retired from working as a certified dental assistant to care for Jodi LaRae, 1.

Les Hess, '73, is a senior trial attorney in the state attorney's office, Orlando, Florida.

Martene (Bittler) Hewitt, '79, is a critical care charge nurse at Porter Memorial Hospital, Denver, Colorado. She has been happily married for two years to Jarrett L. Hewitt, a respiratory therapist and mechanical engineer.

Wayne Hicks, '71, is associate youth director for the Upper Columbia Conference, Spokane, Washington. He and his wife, Jeri (Haeger), have boys 7 and 8. "We are delighted owners of five horses and all of us are anxiously promoting the soon return of Jesus through the Pathfinder program of the Upper Columbia Conference."

Memo from the president

Dear Reader.

We are pleased to announce the largest fund-raising campaign in Southern College history. This campaign is no ordinary fund-raising event. The future of the college itself is directly affected because the funds raised will benefit thousands of students through scholarships.

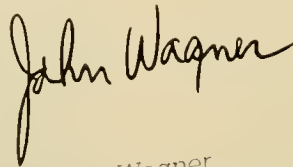

All of us have observed that the price of a private education is rapidly approaching the unreachable for most families. Lacking the heavy government and state funding that public colleges receive, private colleges across the nation are forced to create new ways to make it easier for students who value the special touch of private education.

After studying success stories from other private colleges, and in following the recommendation of many successful businessmen, we have decided we must face the problem of rising tuition and tackle it head on. There has long been talk of possible options, church subsidies in education and so forth, but these options are not yet reality, and we can no longer sit back and wait. Our students need help now. Many young people want the chance to obtain a unique education at an Adventist college, mix with dedicated, Christian faculty and friends, and form those lasting Christian relationships that affect the rest of their lives.

And so we have initiated the Century II Endowment Fund. Our goal is to raise $10 million so that the yearly interest can be reinvested in the lives of thousands of students who will receive scholarships.

Please join us in prayerful support as we launch this campaign.

May God's blessings be with each of you.

John Wagner
President
